teachers are appointed against leave vacancies or deputation vacancies their term of appointment being co-terminus with either the leave vacancy or deputation vacancy, their services will have to be terminated so as to make room for the regular incumbents who have either returned from training or leave.

The Grant-in-Aid Code of Collegiate Education contemplates only two courses of action against the erringmanagements (a) to derecognise the institutions and (b) to stop or reduce the grants payable to institutions. Experience has shown that whenever any of these courses are resorted to the sufferers are the teachers and the students concerned. It is with a view to suggest suiteble administrative and statutory remedies that the Government have appointed a 'one Man Commission of Enquiry' Concurrently, action is also being taken to amend the Grant-in-aid to ensure reasonable opportunity to the persons who are removed from service to defence their cases by prefering an appeal to the Director of Collegiate Education in the first instance.
